National Society Sons and Daughters of Antebellum Planters, 1607-1861

Lineage Book II (2022)

Eleven years since the publication of Lineage Book I, (2011) and working in concert with Otter Bay Books of Baltimore, Maryland, the Society hopes to have this printed volume available at the end of the summer.

Consistent with founding purposes, National Society Sons and Daughters of Antebellum Planters, 1607-1861: Lineage Book II [2022] is an accounting of all member lineages from verified applications and supplements submitted between May 1, 2011 and February 2, 2022. The lineage applications have all been approved by David Carline Smith, and have now been compiled by David Lawrence Grinnell, this Second volume aggregates the second 250 member lineages authenticated by the Society, along with about 100 supplemental lineages linked to bona fide planter ancestors.

An exceptional new resource for all researchers searching for pre-Civil War ancestors, Lineage Book II, provides the following particulars on each of the documented planter descendants from member number 269 to number 520. The full name and place of birth of the NSSDAP “son” or “daughter” and a generation-by-generation pedigree connecting the member to his colonial and antebellum planter, which includes the names and dates of birth and death of spouses in each generation and a reference to the source(s) of the information is listed. Most of the lineages range over eight generations, and in many cases over fourteen or more. The name index to the lineage volume refers to 5,500 persons in the ancestry of its members. Besides the lineages and index, readers will find much useful information in the front matter to the work, including a brief history of the organization, lists of all officers, names of founding and charter members, NSSDAP's stated purposes and admission policies, and more.

The National Society Sons and Daughters of Antebellum Planters (NSSDAP) was organized on October 19, 1997, in Washington, D.C. Its stated objectives include "to identify and honor the memory of ancestors who were ~planters' within lands today comprising the 48 states of the continental United States between 1607 and April 12, 1861 . . . [and] to produce and distribute publications of all kinds relating to the history and genealogy of such "planters." The Society regards a planter as "a large farmer . . . one owning not less than 500 acres of land on which not less than 20 persons, engaged in varying capacities in the agricultural operation, will be employed." Eligibility for membership in the Society is open to men and women 18 years of age or older who are lineal descendants of a planter; however, admission to membership in the NSSDAP is by invitation of the President General of the Society. Membership inquiries are welcome.
